Proposed PG CBCS Structure for 2018-19 Session

Department of Graphics-Printmaking

The proposed CBCS structure for post-graduate academic programme consists of three types of courses viz. Core Course, Compulsory Elective Course and Open Elective course.

Core Course (CC): This is a set of courses which is considered essential to any suitable educational programme of the University to develop necessary knowledge, in-depth understanding and ability to apply concerned skills among the students in a specific discipline. The learning components of the courses should be determined according to the international and national standards, Vision and Mission of the University as well as according to the common requirement in context of the society.

Total number of Core Courses: 14

Compulsory Elective Course (CEC): This is a pool of specialised courses based on different emerging areas under the broad domain of the discipline, but beyond the compulsory courses; from which one area of specialisation be opted by the students for nurturing self-development, self-fulfillment and skill development.

Compulsory Elective Course may be offered only for the students of home department in the Semester III & Semester IV. Students may be offered to choose any One compulsory Elective containing four courses out of a Pool of Compulsory Elective Courses.

Total number of Compulsory Elective Courses: 4

Open Elective Course (OEC): This is a pool of specialised courses having multi-disciplinary character. It may be related with the mother discipline of study and may be supportive to the discipline of study enabling an exposure to some other discipline or domain of studies.

Open Elective Courses may be offered to the students of other departments including the students of home department to choose one Elective Course containing two courses in the Semester IV out of the pool of Open Elective Courses.

Total number of Open Elective Courses: 2

Each Course may be of 50 marks and out of which 20% of marks (10 marks) may be allotted for Continuous Internal Assessment.
